Four Out Of Five By-elections Won By Liberal Party

The Bennett administration, which again has been told in the plainest fashion that the people of Canada no longer desire its continuance in office, but demand their right, in accordance with the spirit of British parliamentary government, to decide at a general election by what party and by what policies the country is to be governed.

TIDE CHANGED
A mere numerical majority in the House of Commons, secured over four years ago as a result of promises, none of which have been fulfilled, does not in accordance with British parliamentary institutions, give to the ministry the right to hang on to office where it is self-evident that the tide of popular feeling has been running steadily against it, and more especially where its policies not only have failed to remedy a serious national condition, but are known to have gravely accentuated it. For a discredited ministry under such conditions to attempt to use its majority in Parliament to continue itself in office is to establish, under the guise of parliamentary forms, a virtual dictatorship.

POSITION OF STEVENS
Having regard to the campaign on price spreads and mass buying, conducted on behalf of the government by H. H. Stevens, Minister of Finance and Commerce, and the prominence thus accorded Mr. Stevens by the Prime Minister and his colleagues, it may also be said the electorate has expressed in no less certain voices indignation at a member of the government not hesitating to use, for political ends, his high office as minister of the crown, chairman of a select committee of the House of Commons, and chairman of a royal commission.

mission. A greater violation of the privileges of parliament will not be found in any British country. In the light of yesterday's verdict, the citizens of Canada will expect from the prime minister an immediate statement as to whether or not Mr. Stevens is to be permitted to continue to hold the judicial office of chairman of a royal commission with respect to the proceedings of which, in a series of political contests, he has not hesitated to assume the role of judge and jury, prosecutor and executioner.

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Toronto, Sept. 25.—Political prospects to-day renewed their study of the signs to determine what the results of Monday's five by-elections may portend. Campaign kites that flew from Kenora-Rainy River on the west to Frontenac-Addington on the east came back to earth recording four Liberal victories out of the five contests for the House of Commons. Continuation of the Liberal trend that marked the advent of the new Ontario Liberal government three months ago was seen. Whether this presaged an earlier general election for the Dominion was a problem the political-minded pondered.

The supporters of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King scored a net gain of two seats and brought their total in the House to ninety-two; they retained two seats previously in the Liberal column.

ELECTION DEMAND
Results of the five by-elections brought from Mr. King, at Ottawa, a statement the electorate before the next Parliament meets. A single Conservative success went to the veteran campaigner, T. L. Church, K.C., in Toronto East.

Reverses to the Conservatives came in York North, adjacent to the city of Toronto, and Frontenac-Addington. Liberals held their position intact in Elgin West, the riding vacated by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario, and Kenora-Rainy River. Three of the four successful Liberals are less than fifty years old; the oldest is fifty-two; the average age of the four is just under forty-three.

FRONTENAC-ADDINGTON
In Frontenac-Addington Colin Campbell emerged as winner. The thirty-three-year-old mining engineer made history by being the first Liberal candidate to carry the riding. His margin of victory over W. R. Aylesworth, Conservative standard bearer, was nearly 2,500. The seat had been held by the late Dr. William Spankie, Conservative, since 1929.

BIG CELEBRATION
Vote counting came to a halt in North York yesterday evening when supporters of W. F. Mulock, thirty-six, turned out to celebrate the Liberal candidate's victory. The grandson of Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, rolled up a 2,000 majority on yesterday evening's partial count over Captain Harold Breuls, his Conservative opponent. The seat he formerly held by the late Lieut.-Col. T. H. Lennox, Conservative.

KENORA-RAINY RIVER
Hugh B. McKinnon, endorsed by the Liberal Party while designated in his Kenora-Rainy River riding as Liberal-Labor, moves into the "driver's seat" formerly held by Hon. Peter Heenan. McKinnon is a locomotive engineer. Thirty-three of his forty-nine years have been spent at railroading.

Early to-day his majority over Joseph Derry, Conservative, was 4,800, more than trebling the vote over his opponent.

IN WEST ELGIN
Wilson H. Mills, supported in the West Elgin fight by Premier Hepburn's personal appearance in the campaign, pined up a heavy rural vote and won handily over his Conservative and Independent opponents.

His majority was nearly 2,500, while his plurality over H. G. Borbridge, Conservative, was 2,900. W. H. MacDonald, the Independent candidate, was a poor third, polling only 562 out of nearly 17,000 votes cast.

TORONTO EAST
The turbulent campaign in Toronto East resulted in success for the veteran "Tommy" Church. The former member for Toronto North, who staged his comeback in a contest against Major H. P. Snelgrove, Liberal, and Graham Spry, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate.

Mr. Church failed to poll a majority over his two opponents, but had a majority over the runner-up candidate. Figures early to-day placed a complete show for Mr. Church at 13,307 out of 28,819 votes; Mr. Snelgrove 10,643 and Mr. Spry 4,869.

This modest home in thinly populated area of Bronx borough, New York City, was the centre of feverish police activities before Bernard Richard Hauptmann was arrested in connection with the kidnapping and murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh two and a half years ago. The little building at right, around which the throng of people is gathered, is Hauptmann's garage, in which $12,500 of the Lindbergh ransom money was found.

CAYLE PRIZES
A report from Dean P. M. Clement showed the university's Cayle prizes had enjoyed "rather exceptional" winnings. The herd took three first prizes, two second prizes, six third prizes and three championships at the Vancouver Exhibition, and won a first prize in every class in which it was entered at the Chaffin Park Fair. Special mention was made of Rainbow Roasting, 130255, prize cow which has already won four Canadian records and has begun competition for the title.

Conservatives 155
Liberals 92
United Farmers 10
Labor 4
Independents 2
Progressives 1

The vacant seat is that of Halifax, formerly held by the late Hon. W. E. Black, Conservative.

NO STATEMENT BY BENNETT
Geneva, Sept. 25.—"I have not seen the details, and should prefer to make no comment," said Prime Minister B. H. Bennett of Canada today in connection with yesterday's five federal by-elections in Ontario.

Premier Bennett, who has been here for some weeks attending the League of Nations, plans to leave Geneva tomorrow for Paris, where he will resume negotiations for a supplementary Franco-Canadian trade agreement in which reciprocal favors for Canadian wheat and French wines figure largely.

CHURCH'S STATEMENT
Toronto, Sept. 25.—T. L. Church, K.C., who rode the federal Conservative banner in yesterday's by-election, attributes his success to the kindness and goodwill of East Toronto voters toward himself.

Mr. Church refused to discuss campaign issues or his opponents. Major H. P. Snelgrove, Liberal, and Graham Spry, C.C.F., were his opponents.

The C.C.F. candidate declared that as far as he was concerned the fight had only just started.

Election campaigns are old fields for Hugh B. McKinnon, victor in yesterday's federal by-election in Kenora-Rainy River.

He was born in Kenora April 21, 1895, and has lived there since during his thirty-three years at railroading. He has played an active part in politics, serving as campaign manager for Hon. Peter Heenan since the latter entered politics. At present he is an engineer for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Rainbow Is Victor In Sixth Cup Race

Then Vanderbilt added ballast to Rainbow, drafted Frank Palmer, designer of the challenger to-day, and a candidate Yankee, for his afterguard and won over the challenger four straight times.

PRECEDENT SET
The series ended—if it has ended—on a note of disagreement and discord unparalleled in the history of the cup.

Never before had both yachts protested the same race, as did Rainbow and Endeavour to-day, and there had not been a protest from either side since 1895 until Sopwith hoisted the red flag Saturday.

He claimed that Rainbow had failed to give him sea room when he had the right of way, and that he had to pull up his challenger to avoid running down the defender. He filed a formal protest with the race committee, which failed to decide the case on its merits, but dismissed it because they said he had not hoisted his signal "promptly."

He did not show the protest flag until just before the finish, while the lead as they went off the second leg of the thirty-mile triangular course.

To-day's protests on both sides chiefly concerned the triangular course. The two boats were behind the line, jockeying for the start.

PROTEST FLAGS HOISTED
To-day's race began with both the defender, Rainbow, and the challenger, Endeavour, flying protest flags.

The complaints were not immediately ascertainable. Endeavour outmanoeuvred the defender behind the line as they jockeyed for the start and had pulled over with a forty-second advantage.

As the two yachts started, Rainbow's crew still was trying to get her Genoa jib set.

TIME FOR PROTESTS
It was pointed out that dual protests made it certain that whichever boat the course first to-day, the official winner would not be known until the race committee had received the complaints of both skippers and had an opportunity to rule on them.

City Assessment Down $1,610,665; Lowest Since 1911

exemptions show an increase of $113,400, arrived at by taking the difference between a $1,977,400 total in 1934 against $2,090,800 for next year.

Deducting the exemptions from the gross, Mr. Okell shows a net reduction of $1,610,665. On both land and improvements the total net reduction is $1,610,665, the 1934 net being $54,838,541 against $56,222,876 for 1935.

Based on the current tax rate of forty-one mills, the entire tax levy for 1935 under the reduced assessment would show a drop of approximately $1,610,665. The cut has virtually amounts to about a mill and one-sixth on the current levy.

MEMBER AT THIRTY-THREE
Colin Campbell, elected yesterday in Frontenac-Addington, becomes an M.P. at the age of thirty-three. Born in Elgin County, Ontario, he was educated at the public schools of Dutton and at Queen's University, Kingston, graduating as a mining engineer. He spent several years with the Hollinger and McIntyre mines, and was until three months ago manager of the Barry-Hollinger mines.

Son of A. G. Campbell, Colin Campbell was a close friend of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn for many years. In the Ontario general election in June last Mr. Campbell ran against Hon. W. D. Black, former Speaker of the Legislature, in Addington, and was defeated by 1,200 majority.

"APPLE KING"
Wilson H. Mills, elected yesterday in West Elgin, is of United Empire Loyalist descent, and was born twenty-two years ago in the village of Sparta, near St. Thomas, Ont.

Known as the "Apple King" of Sparta, Mr. Mills owns hundreds of acres of orchards and rents many more. He is one of the largest apple growers in Ontario. He operates a grading and packing plant in Sparta, and his exports overseas last year amounted to twenty-five carloads.

Mr. Mills served on the county council for many years, and is an

Bank of New York, National City Company, American International Corporation, Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Western Union Telegraph Company, Consolidated Gas, Atlantic Fruit Company, Cuba Company and others.

He was also director of the Green-which Council Boy Scouts of America, founder of the American Society for Relief of French War Orphans, and a Member of the Academy of Political Science, the Japan Society and the American Museum of Natural History.

NEW EVIDENCE IN KIDNAP CASE

Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnapping suspect, and those found near the Hopewell, N.J., home of the Lindberghs, was disclosed to-day at the United States Justice Department.

To a reporter who suggested that Hauptmann's prints were larger than those found at Hopewell, the answer was "that's a bum guess."

Department scientists are seeking data on the footprints of the late Lindbergh, also mentioned in connection with the abduction, to see whether there is a correspondence between his prints and those discovered at Hopewell.

Since Fisch died in Germany a year ago it was pointed out that a check-up on these prints might be difficult.

EXHIBITS VIEWED
Several exhibits were taken to-day before the Bronx County grand jury hearing the extortion case against Hauptmann. These included the $13,750 in ransom bills found in Hauptmann's Bronx garage, a can which contained the money and a box containing a pair of shoes Hauptmann bought for his wife and allegedly paid for with one of the ransom notes. The ransom notes also were taken before the jury.

During the time the money and notes were before the jury, Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert, was written and was kept in the grand jury room for an hour. He said Hauptmann was the man who wrote the ransom notes, and Hauptmann's signature on his automobile registration card.

District Attorney Foley reiterated a statement made yesterday that he did not expect to call Mr. Lindbergh as a witness.

NO FINGERPRINTS
The question of fingerprints was brought to the fore in the investigation again to-day by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New York state police. He repeated an oft-voiced statement that no fingerprints had been found in the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnapping.

"We found no fingerprints on the window sill of the nursery," Col. Schwarzkopf said. "We found no fingerprints of any kind, anywhere. That includes the ladder and everything else."

New Jersey activity in the investigation continued unabated to-day. Anthony M. Hauck, prosecutor of Hunterdon County, the site of the Lindbergh home, went to Trenton to confer with New Jersey attorneys, David W. Willems. Hauck said the conference presumably was about the Lindbergh case and he announced the grand jury would meet Thursday. However, he said, he did not know whether indictments would be sought then against Hauptmann.

Going around the turn with a minute, eight seconds advantage, Endeavour lost some of her way as the crew handled her Genoa jib. Rainbow came around and went off on the starboard tack for the start of the ten-mile race to windward.

At 11.57 she went back to the port tack. Endeavour's crew still was struggling with her headsails.

Once she had her sails drawing, Sopwith held Endeavour on a starboard tack. It seemed apparent he had no intention of attempting to keep Rainbow covered on the Genoa.

It was difficult to judge the relative positions of the two yachts or determine whether Rainbow had taken the lead as they went off at different angles from the course.

It was an unusual procedure for Sopwith to adopt as the leading yacht generally keeps the trailing yacht covered to protect a lead.

YACHTS FAR APART
Rainbow went back to the starboard tack at 12.07. She was over two miles to weather of Endeavour and still trailing the challenger.

Endeavour had doused her Genoa and broken out a stay sail and her Greta Garbo jib. She was slow getting them set, but once up they began to draw beautifully.

At 12.26 the positions of the two were plotted from the Agro's bridge and showed them to be almost exactly the same distance from the start-nile mark, although about two miles apart.

Endeavour was estimated to be about two and one-half miles from the twenty-mile mark at 12.53, apparently somewhat closer than Rainbow. They still were about two miles apart, although now on the same tack.

At 1.01 Endeavour went over on the port tack, apparently hoping to intercept Rainbow, which was boring in for the mark on a starboard hilt.

ALBERT S. OSBORN, HANDWRITING EXPERT

Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert, and his son, Albert D., were before the grand jury to-day to discuss the handwriting of the ransom notes, and that of Hauptmann on applications for automobile licenses were similar, being questioned most of that time.

COUNSEL HEARD
Col. Henry Breckinridge, personal counsel to Col. Lindbergh and a prominent figure in the search for the kidnapped baby two and one-half years ago, was before the grand jury about thirty minutes.

He declined to discuss his appearance, and also declined to say anything about his prospective meeting here to-morrow with Col. Lindbergh, who is expected to testify before the grand jury to-morrow.

District Attorney Foley said emphatically to-day no indictment has yet been voted by the grand jury.

TELLS ABOUT LOAN
James M. Fawcett, attorney for Hauptmann, said to-day Hauptmann told him he had loaned $2,000 to Leodore Fisch, the man he said was Hauptmann's brother-in-law, for a time, and also that he believed Fisch owed him about $5,000 from the business.

"I am coming to believe more and more," Fawcett said, "that another man is the real culprit."

The older Osborn said that, without breaking grand jury confidences, he could state Hauptmann was the man who wrote the ransom notes. He said he based this conclusion on his study of the notes and Hauptmann's signature on his automobile registration card.

FORMER COMPANION DISAPPEARS
Kamenz, Germany, Sept. 25.—Apparently annoyed by recent disclosures of early companions in wrong-doing, a man who turned over a new leaf and became a respected member of the community has vanished without a word.

He is Fritz Paetzold, who, back in 1919, was sentenced with Hauptmann to five years in jail for robbery. Paetzold's boss, Reinhold Hentschel, the local blacksmith, said: "Paetzold has not shown up here for two days."

Hentschel blamed his employee's disappearance on German newspapermen and their "unscrupulous" and unfair revelation in the German newspapers of the criminal record of Hauptmann's previous offences.

RESCUE MADE BY CANOEIST

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Sept. 25.—Joseph Stevenson, nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevenson, Brechin, effected a thrilling rescue when he went to the assistance of a young Japanese, whose canoe had capsized during a squall off Stevenson's Point, Departure Bay, on Saturday evening. It appears that a number of Japanese fishermen were trolling when a squall struck them. All the canoes made for the shore with the exception of Togo-Bomaye, his craft being swamped. Stevenson went to the rescue and succeeded in getting the Japanese in his canoe. The sea was very choppy and the onlookers were amazed at the skillful manner in which Stevenson managed to get the Japanese aboard without capsizing. The canoe of Togo was later washed ashore, being demolished on the rocks.

HOME OPTIMISTS OPEN BIG SHOW

1,200 Persons Crowd in For First of an All-week Run Here

Eight hundred persons waited in line for the doors of the City Temple to open yesterday evening for the opening of the Home Gas Optimists' full week of performances here. Before the show commenced, the capacity of the auditorium was jammed with 1,200 persons.

Thomas McPherson, popular Victoria manager for Home Gas, introduced the Optimists to the great audience. The schedule here includes a show every evening this week, with a children's matinee on Saturday afternoon. The show is put on for the patrons of Home Gasoline and oil. With free admissions being issued by Home Gas dealers here.

Heading the Optimists' troupe again on this visit is the clever master of ceremonies, Frank Anders. He announced that although it was an entirely new show that had been brought over, the members of the company were the same as those who had made the great hit with Victoria audiences last April, with one exception, that of a member of the group who was married last Saturday and was now away honeymooning.

DANCING NYMPHS
Featuring the programme yesterday evening was a newly-imported group of dynamic dancing nymphs, who appeared in a weeping willow series of improvised dances. This group appeared by special permission of Calvin Winter, and were introduced by Mr. Anders. They brought the house down with their number "If Winter Comes Is Anders Far Behind," a burlesque on "The Dance of the Spider."

"It costs nothing to laugh," said Mr. Anders, and working on that he put the large audience through his risible paces.

After the customary opening theme songs, "Home, Sweet Home," and "Happy Days," the Optimists swung into their top-line numbers of fun and melody.

Two new big-time performers appearing yesterday evening for the first time before a Victoria audience were the Heights, Isabelle and Kenny, who do clever tap-dancing and the sensational new rope-skipping dance. This team gave three numbers.

Chris Kenny's "Punch and Judy" show did a twenty-minute turn, which convulsed the house.

Ernie Colton put over the new song, "Men of the Air," and did some negro spirituals. Joining with him was Isabelle McEwan, the much-beloved singing queen of the radio. Together they sang "Love in Bloom."

Mr. Kenny also put on a ventriloquist act with his friend "Mac." Both these are masters of their profession, and Mr. Kenny has the high distinction of having had his work witnessed and approved by royalty.

The finale was "Schooldays," a comedy sketch, with Mr. Anders appearing as the schoolmaster, and the rest of the Optimists as his pupils.

The Optimists will put on their full show at the City Temple this evening.

WAR PENSIONS UNDER REVIEW

Resolutions For Better Treatment Considered By Veterans at Convention

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 25.—War pensions continued to hold the interest of delegates at this forenoon's session of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, which is meeting here in triennial convention.

A request to the Dominion Government, to call a commission of medical specialists to pass on cases where disability has occurred some time after the end of the war was contained in one resolution.

It was claimed many cases of neurasthenia and "diseases of insidious onset" have been disqualified from pensions because the disability has appeared after discharge from the army.

Delegates insisted the men who are placed on the board be doctors who have had war experience and are familiar with conditions overseas.

Another resolution stipulated that any cases of overpayment due to error should be allowed to stand because "such over payments were due to mistakes of the pension commission and not of the pensioner."

SALARY REDUCTIONS PROTESTED

A measure submitted by the Lethbridge unit No. 1, asked that the scale of wages of salaries shall not interfere with the rate of pension received by a veteran. This was interpreted as a counter-attack against the Dominion Government, which last year began a move to deduct the amount of pensions from salary cheques.

A suggestion, which had the endorsement of fifteen military units from coast to coast, advocated the placing of British veterans resident in Canada on the same footing with Canadian veterans. At present, it is understood, these veterans operate under disabilities such as reduced pensions and restricted allowances for medical and hospital fees.

The convention is meeting in morning and afternoon sessions—in addition to meetings of the executive at night—in order to dispose of a long list of resolutions before adjournment on Wednesday. Considerable progress has been made so far, most of the resolutions passing unanimously, but there are a number of controversial questions remaining to be disposed of.

MORE ELASTICITY ASKED

Among the resolutions passed yesterday was a demand that veterans be given "benefit of the doubt" when applying for pensions and that men be treated as individuals and not classified in groups according to pension regulations.

The convention went on record as favoring revision of the Pension Act to allow greater elasticity in administering awards to disabled veterans.

In the resolutions passed there was an insistence on the need of paying heed to the conditions under which ex-service men lived while in the trenches. "Four years spent in mud up to the waist are very different from four years spent in a comparatively comfortable post, and the pension grants should be adjusted accordingly," said one delegate.

Criticism of the department of the Auditor-General of Canada in administering pension funds was contained in one resolution. It read: "We protest against the Department of the Auditor-General interfering with the adjudications of the Canadian Pensions Commission and request that, if necessary, legislation be enacted clearly defining the limits of the authority of the Department of the Auditor-General in relation to the Canadian Pensions Commission."

WAR MARRIAGES

The question of war marriages, entered into with good faith but later found to be invalid, was treated in a motion passed yesterday.

It was announced that thousands of cases are pending before the pensions commission because settlement of this question is in doubt.

The convention voted to recommend that where a marriage, apparently made in good faith but subsequently proved to be bigamous or invalid for some other reason, precludes a veteran from receiving a pension for marriage allowance, discretionary powers, granted to the

TO CONSIDER STOP SIGNS

Erection of more stop signals at dangerous intersections in the city appeared virtually assured today, following discussion of recent serious accidents at the City Council meeting yesterday evening.

Alderman R. A. C. Dewar brought in a motion recommending that the chief of police, the executive of the public works committee and the police commission inspect the intersections at Cook and Pembroke, Richardson and Moss, Linden and Fairfield and Pandora and Fernwood Avenue with a view to suggesting establishment of signs to help avert further serious accidents.

HOME OPTIMISTS OPEN BIG SHOW

1,200 Persons Crowd in For First of an All-week Run Here

Eight hundred persons waited in line for the doors of the City Temple to open yesterday evening for the opening of the Home Gas Optimists' full week of performances here. Before the show commenced, the capacity of the auditorium was jammed with 1,200 persons.

Thomas McPherson, popular Victoria manager for Home Gas, introduced the Optimists to the great audience. The schedule here includes a show every evening this week, with a children's matinee on Saturday afternoon. The show is put on for the patrons of Home Gasoline and oil. With free admissions being issued by Home Gas dealers here.

Heading the Optimists' troupe again on this visit is the clever master of ceremonies, Frank Anders. He announced that although it was an entirely new show that had been brought over, the members of the company were the same as those who had made the great hit with Victoria audiences last April, with one exception, that of a member of the group who was married last Saturday and was now away honeymooning.

"It costs nothing to laugh," said Mr. Anders, and working on that he put the large audience through his risible paces.

After the customary opening theme songs, "Home, Sweet Home," and "Happy Days," the Optimists swung into their top-line numbers of fun and melody.

Two new big-time performers appearing yesterday evening for the first time before a Victoria audience were the Heights, Isabelle and Kenny, who do clever tap-dancing and the sensational new rope-skipping dance. This team gave three numbers.

Chris Kenny's "Punch and Judy" show did a twenty-minute turn, which convulsed the house.

Ernie Colton put over the new song, "Men of the Air," and did some negro spirituals. Joining with him was Isabelle McEwan, the much-beloved singing queen of the radio. Together they sang "Love in Bloom."

Mr. Kenny also put on a ventriloquist act with his friend "Mac." Both these are masters of their profession, and Mr. Kenny has the high distinction of having had his work witnessed and approved by royalty.

The finale was "Schooldays," a comedy sketch, with Mr. Anders appearing as the schoolmaster, and the rest of the Optimists as his pupils.

The Optimists will put on their full show at the City Temple this evening.

SUGGEST NEW WAGE SCALE
Consideration will be given to a recommendation that single unemployed property owners, who held their land and improvements prior to January, 1932, be allowed $3.00 a day for relief work, as the result of City Council action yesterday evening. The recommendation was brought in by a special committee inquiring into charges laid by Walter Inward against the relief department. The department had been administered in a legal manner and had won commendation from authoritative sources, it was reported. No grounds were found for inwards charges of perjury. The wage ruling will be considered by the relief committee before action is taken on the matter.

NANAIMO MAN "BUNCO" VICTIM
Seattle, Sept. 25.—Shortly after he had reported to police that two "bunco" men defrauded him of $50 yesterday afternoon, Mike Hendrickson, sixty-eight-year-old resident of Nanaimo, B.C., fainted in the King Street station and suffered a severe head injury when he fell to the floor. He was taken to Harborview County Hospital. Police said Hendrickson gave the money to two strangers, who had told him they had a "sure bet" and could make a profit for him. The men did not return.

MR. BENNETT SHOULD RESIGN

"To-day's by-elections, like all that have preceded them in the last two years, disclose how completely the present administration has lost the confidence of the people."—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

"I have not seen the details, and should prefer to make no comment."—Premier Bennett at Geneva.

FIVE FEDERAL BY-ELECTIONS WERE held yesterday in Ontario. In four ridings Liberals were returned—a gain in two of them for the party now in opposition. In Toronto East, one of the strongest Tory strongholds of the mayor, Mr. T. L. Church, K.C., seven times Toronto's mayor and a former member of the House of Commons, got in on a minority vote. He polled 13,207. Major H. P. Snelgrove, Liberal, polled 10,643, and Mr. Graham Spry, the C.C.F. candidate, came in third with 4,699 votes. The anti-government vote, therefore, is 12,335. At the general election in 1930, a straight fight between a Liberal and a Conservative, the Conservative majority was 7,080. Had it been a straight fight between King and Bennett men yesterday, it would appear that the government standard-bearer would have gone down to defeat.

This is how the verdict of the electors was given in the general election of 1930:

Toronto East
Ryckman, Conservative	13,428
Allen, Liberal	6,348
York North
Leitch, Conservative	10,402
Mulock, Liberal	10,104
Elgin West
Hepburn, Liberal	10,020
Dowlen, Conservative	8,583
Frontenac-Addington
Spink, Conservative	7,432
Stinchcombe, Liberal	4,061
Kenora-Rainy River
Heenan, Liberal	6,313
McManus, Conservative	5,811

Frontenac-Addington's result must have been a solar plexus blow for the government. This riding was established in 1924, but in neither Frontenac-Addington nor the old riding of Frontenac was a Liberal ever elected until yesterday. Dr. William Spinkie, who died recently, had held it as a Conservative since 1929. The vote yesterday was: Campbell, 9,656; Aylesworth, 7,011—a majority for the Liberal of 2,645. This verdict in so strong a Tory seat as Frontenac is overwhelming.

North York was an interesting contest. Colonel W. H. Mulock, a grandson of Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, who was Postmaster-General in the Laurier cabinet, fought it out with his regimental colleague, Captain Harold Bruels, who flew the Bennett colors. Both went overseas in the Great War as mere youths. Both won commissions. Both are lawyers. They belong to the same regiment. Both have been president of the Veterans' Association of the riding. As this is written, the riding is giving Colonel Mulock a majority of about 2,000, but returns are not yet complete.

In the ridings of Elgin West, the seat formerly held by the new Premier of Ontario, Mr. Mitchell Hepburn, and in Kenora-Rainy River, formerly held by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor in the King government and now a minister in the Hepburn cabinet, Liberal majorities were running much larger than in the general election of 1930. This fact furnishes its own commentary.

When all is said and done, therefore, Mr. King's pronouncement, quoted above, sums up the political situation in Canada. Premier Bennett and his administration are wholly discredited. The electors of the five Ontario ridings who went to the polls yesterday—as have the electors in former federal by-elections and in four provincial general elections—obviously had made up their minds that Canadians as a whole have no use for Toryism.

It is not to be wondered at. When Mr. Bennett toured the country in 1930, he told the Canadian people that he would end unemployment or perish in the attempt. Some of his more zealous disciples suggested that he would end unemployment in three days. In the four years since he assumed office at Ottawa he has done neither. The government tinkered with the tariff and aggravated an economic situation which piled upon Canada, with the rest of the world, problems that might have been solved if narrow interests had not been allowed to intervene. Mr. Bennett's gospel was that of selling but not buying. He tried to apply a fallacious formula in the place of a fundamental economic law.

Mr. Bennett now has before him concrete evidence that he no longer has the confidence of the Canadian people. Neither has his Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. H. H. Stevens, who has been trying to capitalize the inquiry of the parliamentary committee into business operations notwithstanding the fact that the inquiry is incomplete and the committee has not submitted its report. On this point Mr. Mackenzie King says: "The citizens of Canada will expect from the Prime Minister an immediate statement as to whether or not Mr. Stevens is to be permitted to continue to hold the judicial office of chairman of a royal commission with the respect to the proceedings of which, in a series of political contests, he has not hesitated to assume the roll of judge and jury, prosecutor and executioner."

In sum, Premier Bennett ought to come back to Canada at once, clear up his office desk and appeal to the country. If he does not do that, he will be flouting the wish of the Canadian electorate.

THOSE OTTAWA PACTS

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID ABOUT THE agreements entered into between the various countries which comprise the Britannic Commonwealth of Nations. We have been told that their operation has stimulated trade between the Dominions and the Colonies. The figures show that this is correct. But it is apparent that some of the pacts are not regarded as conducive to empire solidarity.

We get a statement from a seasoned Canadian journalist, in Great Britain looking things over, who has tried to pry under the mess of tariff fooling. Here is just one sentence from Manchester: "The Ottawa agreements were designed to knit the empire together as an economic whole. They do not appear to be working out that way. It might be nearer the mark to say that they are tending to split up the empire into nationalistic units, doing as little trade with one another as possible." We quote this Canadian again:

"But there are signs of a return to economic sanity. The Westminster Bank, in its latest review, points out that most of the actions taken by a good many nations 'pre-occupied with domestic recovery' have tended to retard rather than accelerate the international recovery on which sound national recovery must be based."

"Protection in all its forms, it says, exchange restrictions and uncertainties, bilateral agreements in practice, if not in theory, all continue to obstruct rather than foster the expansion of international trade."

"The review urges that Britain, being relatively prosperous, should foster a widespread and wholesale removal of the fetters of international commerce, and this from motives based on both altruism and self-interest."

"Fundamentally, the trouble is that the world as a whole still labors under a depression frame of mind. That can be flung off only under the leadership of the more prosperous countries, who have least excuse for it—particularly our own."

CHEMISTS ALSO BRING HOPE

THE CHEMIST HAS BEEN GETTING a bad name for himself lately. It sometimes seems as if he never gets his name in the paper except when he invents a new kind of poisonous gas, or devises a new industrial process which will put more men out of work.

It is only fair, therefore, to remind ourselves that there is another side to the ledger. Proceedings of the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society, at Cleveland, show how these scientists are working steadily to make the world a happier place.

For example: Two University of Pennsylvania men report to the society that they have discovered a new substance in the bodies of men which seems to make human tissues resistant to cancer. It is suggested that it may be the presence of this substance in a healthy body which makes it free from cancer—and the absence of it which makes cancer develop.

Not enough is known, yet, to enable one to say what importance this discovery may eventually have. But there is just a chance that the great war on cancer is appreciably nearer final victory because of it.

Another group of research specialists tell how they have developed a drug which deals out death to pneumonia germs. This drug, seemingly effective against all types of pneumonia germs, is a derivative of an earlier-known compound which, while fatal to the germs, was also very destructive of human tissue—and, therefore, too dangerous to use medically.

The dangers seem to have been overcome; and, once again, while it is too early to predict that the long-sought specific for pneumonia has been found, it is just possible that this dreaded disease may be on the verge of being conquered.

Still another chemist reports that the use of copper and iron salts will cure nutritional anemia in infants. Another tells of a few-draw for the treatment of fat embolism, a deadly congestion of the lungs which sometimes occurs after a major operation.

All of these things—some of which may have the most profound influence on the effort to reduce human suffering and misery—are simply part of the ordinary, day-to-day work which goes on in our research laboratories.

We seldom hear of this work. The chemist goes his way unsung, and most of us connect his name chiefly with death and destruction. It is only fair to remember that there is another side to it.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

"UN-AMERICAN"
The Washington Post

Culminating in the wholesale bloodbath at Minneapolis, armed force has been unleashed against striking workers with deplorable frequency of late. The public, which does not pretend to understand all the ins and outs of the present epidemic of industrial disputes, is nevertheless clear in its mind on two points. The first of these is that bullets never provide a permanent solution for any labor trouble. And the other conviction is that there is something very un-American and rather too reminiscent of procedure in Czarist Russia, in the use of massacre tactics against unarmed mobs.

"NO ENTANGLING ALLIANCES"
Allen W. Dulles in Foreign Affairs (New York)

At least we should now realize that we cannot find safety solely in avoiding entangling alliances and through a traditional neutrality. There is no thought of any alliances or other types of political understanding which would prejudice our freedom of decision in given emergency. The fact is, however, that no nation can reach the position of a World Power as we have done without becoming, in fact, entangled in almost every quarter of the globe in one way or another. We are inextricably and inevitably tied into world affairs. We should not delude ourselves that like Perseus of mythology we can put on neutrality as a helmet and render ourselves invisible and immune to a world in conflict around us.

A THOUGHT

Where there is no vision, the people perish; but he that keepseth the law, happy is he.—Proverbs xxix 18.
If a man take no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand.—Confucius.

Loose Ends

They separate the left from the right—Professor Myers goes a long way for very little—which he could find here—we climb the hill—and meet autumn face to face.

By M. B. W.

AN INTERESTING PROCESS is going on in the United States now, below the surface of politics, which should be watched and carefully noted here. The old party lines are cracking in all directions down there, the labels are being torn across the middle. Designated or not, President Roosevelt is bringing about an entirely new alignment in politics.

Just for example, the most famous Socialist in the country is the Democratic candidate for governor in California, and at the same time California Democrats are supporting the Republican nominee for the Senate because he is supporting the Democratic Roosevelt. Leading Democrats are behind the American Liberty League, which is out to sink the New Deal, and as the time comes, the Republicans are supporting it in Congress.

Within a short time, certainly by the national election of 1936, you will not be a Democrat or a Republican in the United States. You will be for the New Deal or against it. At last, if this progress continues, one party will be truly conservative and one truly liberal. One will be radical and one reactionary.

This has been needed for a long time in the United States and just as badly in Canada. Everybody knows that the Liberal Party in Canada has been housing numerous reactionaries and the Conservative Party sprinkled with radicals. Even in the teeth of the present crisis the labels have been gallantly maintained so far, but everybody knows that sooner or later the real fundamental differences will assert themselves. Some issue will come up which will separate the Right from the Left, cutting clear across party lines.

The sooner it comes the sooner we shall begin to start going somewhere. For years our politics and economics have been standing still in bewilderment. Why, many a poor politician imagines he is a Liberal because he would like to cut the tariff down a few points, and other fellows think they are Tories because they want to put it up a few points. Alas, they are both wrong. The fact is, there is far more to it than that, and their present state of confusion is moving in the extreme. The next House of Commons, filled with monetary reformers, planners, price fixers, industrial codifiers, unconscious Socialists and a few Communists will be a very confusing and highly important.

QUEST FOR BEAUTY

PROFESSOR CHARLES SAMUEL MYERS told the British Association for the Advancement of Science recently of an important quest which he had undertaken. The professor, a painstaking fellow, set out across the world to discover unusual standards of beauty, and he found plenty. For instance, in the remote Balkans he found the poor, miserable natives worshipping women with long faces, like horses. On the island of Cyprus the lady who was acclaimed as the most beautiful and would have won the title of Miss Cyprus if the ignorant aborigines were civilized enough to parade their women half nude in public competitions as they do in the most civilized countries—this loveliest lady of Cyprus looked precisely like a frog.

The British Association for the Advancement of Science was doubtless deeply shocked at the revelations. But perhaps Professor Myers didn't need to go as far to discover what he sought. It is a solemn thought that at this very moment, some traveler from the remote recesses of the Balkans or from the island of Cyprus is traveling in the western world and will tell his countrymen on his return that he found the weirdest standards of beauty prevailing here. It is a tremendous thought, indeed, that about nine-tenths of the world would say that the favored daughters of Hollywood, who set our standards in beauty, in clothes, in morals and in intelligence, are wasted, scrawny, masculine and appallingly ugly.

But it is a still more devastating thought that the remote recesses of the Balkans, the island of Cyprus and the wilds of the Orient to corrupt the tastes of the innocent natives there, to make them ashamed of their horse-faced beauties and frog-faced local charmers.

ON THE HILL

WE HAVE JUST performed the solemn autumn rite of climbing the hill. We always climb the hill at this time of year just to feel autumn blowing in and the last remnants of summer blowing out. It is on our hill, you see, that Autumn makes his headquarters. You may see vague glimpses of him down below. You may observe a few leaves falling and the nights getting colder and the consumption of coal increasing in your furnace. But you never really see autumn face to face unless you climb our hill.

You pick up his trail in the glade of oak trees that lies along the southern side of the hill. He has been marching up here with a giant stride, scattering the oak leaves with his breath, long before he has had time to blow down the leaves anywhere else. Already the ground is covered with them, like a thick rug in patterns of yellow, green and brown. The leaves seem to pour down the hill-sides in trickles of molten bronze, and in the hollows between the grey rocks they accumulate in deep pools, where you can wade up to your knees or, preferably, dive into them head first with the little boy and girl from next door.

Free from prying eyes of city folk, who might not understand it, you can dive as often as you like into these pools and roll about in the friendly leaves to your heart's content without danger of drowning. And until you have rolled in the oak leaves, until you have hurled great masses of them into the air and watched them float down the wind, you have not felt the touch of autumn, the rough, honest, jolly touch of old friends. Until you have felt the oak leaves you have not grasped autumn by the hand as we do up on our hill.

So we bear eastward, through the oak glade, rustling our feet among the dry leaves with a delicious feeling, and then that immortal crackle which, if you listen carefully, you will find resembles exactly the sweep of waves across a beach.

After a while we come out of the glade and to the bare rocks, into the very teeth of autumn. He has left the woods and is up here on the top of the hill now, singing a lusty song. We can hardly stand up in the roar

West Australia

Asks Separation

Petitioners Leave Fremantle For Great Britain; Alleged Unconstitutional

Canadian Press, via Reuters
Fremantle, Australia, Sept. 25.—A delegation of four sailed yesterday for England, carrying the petition of the State of Western Australia for separation from the Commonwealth. The petition is in the form of an address to the King and the House of Lords and House of Commons, authorized by the State Parliament, which follows the special plebiscite of last year, when the people voted by a majority of about two to one in favor of secession from the Commonwealth.

CENSUS RECORD

IS PUBLISHED

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Of particular interest to students of Canadian history, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has issued a report giving a chronological list of censuses taken in Canada. Starting with 1605, when Port Royal was founded, the report makes public records of population collected by the Dominion archives covering more than 300 years. In 1605, according to the report, twenty-eight settlers, including Samuel de Champlain, wintered at Quebec. In 1609 the population of New France was given as eight, and it was explained that seventeen deaths occurred during the winter. From year to year, the record reflects the struggle of the meagre population against great odds, but with a steady increase in numbers. In 1754, New France, according to the records, had grown to 37,716, and twenty years later its population is

Closer Co-operation Between B.C. and Federal Governments

B. F. Haanel, head of the laboratory branch of the Federal Department of Mines, and R. A. Strong, combustion expert, arrived in the city yesterday from Ottawa. They are both registered at the Empress Hotel.

During the forenoon Messrs. Haanel and Strong had a conference with Hon. George S. Pearson, Provincial Minister of Mines, and Robert Dunn, deputy minister, the discussion having to do with the coal problems of British Columbia.

Betterment of conditions for the marketing of coal in various forms, and closer co-operation between the B.C. and Dominion Departments of Mines, is expected to result, it was stated.

The department of mines here had before it some time ago reports giving results of tests made in the government laboratories at Ottawa determining the best coals for use in powdered form as well as coaling possibilities.

The results of these tests have been satisfactory, and the marketing of the products is now being given close attention.

B.C. is expected to benefit through co-operation with the Dominion Government in solving its coal production problems.

MAGIC FEATS AT LUNCHEON

William Harkness Amazes Members of Gyro Club With Clever Acts

Members of the Gyro Club were treated to several clever tricks of magic a half luncheon yesterday in the Empress Hotel by William Harkness, well-known local magician, who recently returned from a convention of magicians in Oakland, Cal.

Mr. Harkness explained that feats of magic first became popular in the sixteenth century. To-day, however, he said, a magician found it rather difficult to perform these feats. People were more educated and not so superstitious. The magician to-day was more of a sleight-of-hand expert.

It was not necessary for a person to have his sleeves rolled up during his tricks, Mr. Harkness said. The modern magician did not roll up his sleeves.

To the amazement of the Gyros, Mr. Harkness did Houdini's famous rope trick as well as a number of others, which were much appreciated.

Mr. Harkness was introduced by Angus McIntyre, Len Woodhouse, newly-elected president of the club, occupied the chair at today's luncheon, which was featured by an unusually large turnout of members.

Mr. Woodhouse thanked the committee in charge of the recent installation dinner at Colwood for the success of the evening.

DUNCAN GOLF

Duncan, Sept. 24. — The Veterans' Cup, which is a challenge cup presented by Dr. D. E. Kerr and W. L. B. Young to the Cowichan Golf Club for competition, was won Sunday for the second year in succession by C. H. Aldersmith, who defeated N. E. Suddaby in the final, 5 and 5.

The play-off for the Suddaby Cup, given by N. E. Suddaby for competition in "Twilight Pourmance" during the months of May, June and July, took place last Friday. The three couples eligible to play in this were Miss D. Peterson and Gerald Prevost, Mrs. C. C. Wright and A. Prevost and Mrs. D. Fowl and N. E. Suddaby. Miss Peterson and Gerald Prevost were the winners with a net 68 handicap 14. Mrs. Wright and A. Prevost being a close second with net 69½ handicap 23½.

Little Hope Of Keeping Service

Chances of having the management of the Grace Lines after the plan to cease the Pacific Northwest service at the end of this month, appeared dim to-day as directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce surveyed steps taken here and in Seattle to have the service maintained.

George I. Warren, secretary of the chamber, read communications which had gone between local leaders and the company's office, including a telegram from the president of the company explaining the cause of cancelling the northern part of the service.

Seattle, he stated, had been greatly disturbed over the alteration.

GREAT DRAIN ON RESOURCES

Youngsters in Need of Shoes and Clothes Depend on Welfare Societies

Since school opened early this month there has been a continual drain on the resources of the Friendly Help Welfare Association and kindred societies in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, of which will appeal to the generosity of the general public of Greater Victoria for $13,500, starting October 15. The amount collected next month is expected to run these organizations satisfactorily for twelve months.

With the opening of the schools hundreds of youngsters were in need of about boots and shoes, warm clothing and other necessary extras that their parents were unable to provide for them. Their wants were taken to the Friendly Help headquarters at 1234 Pandora Avenue and there these needy persons were looked after by willing helpers.

When it is realized that it is much cheaper to provide shoes and clothes for youngsters than to pay for medicine and hospital care, the money spent by these welfare organizations is not a bit out of the way. If youngsters are sent to school improperly clad in wet and cold weather illness is sure to result. It is to prevent this illness that the officials of the welfare societies in Victoria, and the surrounding municipalities are anxious to provide every want for the needy children of the city.

These societies must depend solely upon voluntary subscriptions from the public, for they receive no government, civic or municipal grant to help them along.

GARDEN CONTEST WINNERS NAMED

D. H. Lowry, 325 Oswego Street, ranks first among utility home gardeners who entered the city's special competition for men on relief, according to an announcement made at yesterday evening's meeting of the City Council by Alderman John Wurtlington, chairman of the parks committee under whose auspices the competition was held.

As a result of his showing, he will receive a cash prize of $25. Next in line stands E. Logan, 1475 Edgewood Road, who will receive an award of $15, while R. Kelly, 1419 Denman Street, third place contestant, will be given one of $10. F. J. Deverson, 1855 Vining Street, was fourth and will receive a prize of $5.

In all seventy-four contestants sought the honors which were up for utilitarian gardens cultivated by relief men.

Congratulations were voiced at the meeting yesterday evening to those winning prizes in the event.

Dyke Orchestra To Make Debut

Programme to Be Given in Centennial Church on Wednesday Evening

The recital to be given to-morrow evening at the Centennial Church, promises to be an especially interesting one. The programme will be given by the George J. Dyke String Orchestra, assisted by Mrs. Norma Smyth, solo soprano.

The orchestra, while taking part in festival competitions at Vancouver, and with the local drama festival last season, is on this occasion, really making its debut concert appearance and its numbers have been selected mainly from sixteenth and seventeenth century English composers.

Mr. Dyke will conduct and Edward Parsons will accompany the singer.

The recital will commence at 8.15, and tickets may be obtained at Fletcher Bros., or at the doors of the church in the evening.

The numbers of the orchestra will be: Two violins, "Venus and Adonis," by Dr. John Bule (1563-1628), and "Shepherd's Lullaby" (William Boyce, 1710-1779); a violin and cello duet, "Dorothy and Joan" (Foulds-17), by Leslie Jordan and Carl Benn; a violin solo, Mozart's "Minuet and Trio from Divertimento," No. 17 (Mozart), by F. J. Ockenden (this and the duet with orchestral accompaniment); "Melody in F" (Gluck); two dances from "Comus" (Dr. Arne, 1710-1778), and "Gavotte Pizzicato" (Liszt); Mrs. Smyth will sing the following songs: "Of Flowers the Fairest" (Bach), "The Unforeseen" (Cyril Scott), "Serenade" (Brahms), "Absence" (Berlioz), "Yung Yung" (Granville Bantock), "Pleading" (Elgar), "Secrecy" (Wolf), "The Chorus of Heaven" (Dunhill), and "Had I the Voice of Morven" (Campbell).

URGE WORKERS LIVE IN CITY

City Employees Must Show Good Reason For Remaining Outside Victoria

City employees not residing within the bounds of Victoria will be asked to come into the city or show reason why they should remain outside, and preference will be given in any future appointments to residents of the city, according to a resolution passed by the City Council at its meeting yesterday evening.

The motion divided into several sections, was introduced by Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins and passed after some argument.

According to the first section of the resolution the council went on record as favoring the principle of giving preference to Victoria home owners should future vacancies have to be filled on the civic staff, unless the best qualified individual was unable to reside in the city.

The clause was endorsed by the entire council.

Discussion sprang up over the second section, which in effect stated that all employees should live in the city with the exception of those under extraordinary circumstances. Some employees left the city to reside elsewhere after securing positions, Alderman Hawkins explained as the cause of that clause.

"Are you going to force a man back into the city even if he has built his home outside," asked Alderman James Adams. He did not think the move right at the present time. The clause the city lost through that situation were but a comparatively small feature of a man's expenditure in the city, he noted.

Alderman Lowry noted if employees were forced from their municipal homes, they would be forced to rent or dispose of them, probably sending another Victorian outside the city's confines. If there were ever to be a Greater Victoria, amicable feeling, not hostility, should be promoted between the city and surrounding municipalities, he added. He spoke of retaliatory measures the municipalities might employ if necessary, noting they could jump the license against city stores trading in the outside districts.

OTHER OBJECTIONS

Alderman Feden brought up again

SUPREME COURT AGAIN JUDGELESS

Victoria is in for another judgeless week.

With one of British Columbia's five Supreme Court justices ill, two on cases in the interior and two at the criminal assizes and civil cases in Vancouver, there is no judge available for Victoria.

Lawyers here yesterday were notified that their Supreme Court applications would have to be held over until the end of the week. It was said that it might be possible to get a judge here for Friday, when he could attack the week's accumulation of business.

Last week was a judgeless week in Victoria, until Friday, when Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald, on his return from northern British Columbia, came over to deal with the waiting applications.

It is expected that the absence of judges will be eased next week with the completion of the assizes in Vancouver and the convalescence of Mr. Justice Fisher.

SEEK WORK ON BUILDING SOON

Builders' Exchange Seeks to Accelerate Federal Construction

In an effort to accelerate work on the new Marine Building, to be erected by the Dominion Government on Wharf Street, the Victoria Builders' Exchange have written to the City Council asking its support in securing an early start on the project.

"It would appear to us," the letter read in part, "that the much looked for relief for the unemployed in the construction industry in this city must of necessity be delayed pending the completion of plans for the new building on Wharf Street."

"So as to bring forward the date when work may be provided, we would respectfully suggest that all possible haste be made, with, of course, due and necessary thought implied, to prepare the plans for the building. On the completion of the plans we would then suggest that while the detailed drawings and necessary specifications are being worked upon, that the excavation and foundations be tendered upon and that work proceed with."

"We feel that some work must be provided in Victoria at the very earliest, as the condition of many of our mechanics and craftsmen in present circumstances, and such a scheme as we have outlined would give such hope as would help the morale of the whole industry in this city. The council endorsed the letter of the builders' exchange."

LADYSMITH

Ladysmith, Sept. 25.—A large number of friends attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Jessie Lauderbach on Saturday afternoon.

Rev. C. McDermid conducted the services. Hymns sung were: "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee."

The following acted as pallbearers: W. Rolston, T. Froese, W. R. Cullum, J. A. Hartley, T. Frodout and J. Weir.

Local Post No. 7, Native Sons and Daughters, held their first whist drive and dance of the season Saturday evening. Fourteen tables were in play; prizes being won by: Ladies, first, Miss Mavis Orr; second, Mrs. R. E. Battle; gentlemen, first, M. A. Morrison; second, P. Spinetto. The door prize was won by Miss Vivian Hayden. Music for the dance was supplied by Atkinson's orchestra.

Mrs. J. McKendrick has left for her home in Trail after spending a holiday here.

The objection of the School Board to the effect that many Victoria residents were teachers in Spanish. He reviewed other features of the case, and protested against the city's interference with a man's personal liberties.

The third clause called for an explanation by non-residents of the city to their homes of their domicile outside the city.

In conclusion the resolution called for submission of its text to the School Board, Police Commission and other public bodies.

PROTECTS SON FROM ACTRESS

Mama Has Five Detectives to Shield Woolworth Heir

Paris, Sept. 25.—While Mrs. James Donahue of New York is hurriedly preparing to take her son, Woolworth, to America and is busy denying rumors of his engagement to Wendy Barrie, English actress, the latter is feigning nonchalance, with a swarm of young swains tumbling over one another to seek her favor.

Wendy confided to a Frenchman recently at the Ritz bar:

"The war is on. The mamma, who says she has never laid eyes on me, is doing her best to keep her little boy and the apart. What's more, five detectives are bounding my trail. It's not worth the bother."

Perhaps it is not. Young Donahue himself does not seem to like the competition. While Wendy, happy with her numerous beaux, is enjoying herself with her chatter, he is brashly up his backgammon with Frank of the Ritz.

INAUGURATE DRESS RULES

Chinese Purity Campaign
Reaches Shanghai; Drastic
Regulations

Shanghai, China, Sept. 25.—The "purity" campaign which has been sweeping the length and breadth of China and which is designed to raise the standard of public morals and regulations, has at last reached Shanghai. The Shanghai magistrature office has just issued a set of regulations containing seven articles governing women's dresses. These are:

1. Trouser suits must be shorter than four inches below the knee.
2. Bare legs and bare feet are strictly prohibited.
3. The hair must be combed backward, and must not be longer than the collar of the gown.
4. Woollen overcoats without buttons must not be worn.
5. Walking in the streets in pyjamas and slippers is strictly forbidden.
6. The new rules must be carried out within two weeks after promulgated by school teachers, girl students, women government employees and wives of government employees, and one month in case of ordinary women and girls.
7. The police have the right to arrest any one on sight defying the new regulations.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

These two leaflets may be had for one self-addressed, three cent stamped envelope sent with the mother's request to the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper. Intelligence in understanding the child's viewpoint, and dealing with his temporary period of transition from babyhood to childhood, will do much to still the child's ready cries which so irritate the mother and bring her good judgment.

To-morrow—Feed Baby on Schedule—and Hold to It.

"Names" is the subject to-day. Perhaps there is a new baby—perhaps not. It doesn't matter, because after all we are going to "nick" him anyway.

A mother has three children, let us say—Elizabeth, Margaret and Edward. But before long she begins to wonder what their names really are. Elizabeth's father calls her Bess, her grandmother insists on Ella, the girl calls her Beth. The doctor calls her Betty, her aunt calls her Lili and her uncle teases her with Bridget and Lizzie.

As for Margaret, the child has to answer to almost anything—the usual string attached to "Margaret"—Peg and Marg and Gretta and Maggie and Edna at times.

AND EVEN MORE SO

Edward gets Ted and Ed and Ned and Red or Slim or Butch or Pie Face. The nice old lady at the corner calls him Edwin and Mr. Smith calls him Edgar. He even gets Edson and Edsel at times.

The result is that their mother tries hard to avoid nicknames so the public will know her children are fit for a passport and not traveling with a dozen aliases.

One of the hardest questions to solve is the name for the new baby. But once selected, it is a problem of selecting a nickname. There should be two christenings, one has come to think, because when Katherine is a year old it would never do to call her that. She must be Kate, or Kiki, or Kitty or Kit, or Reeny or Kathy or anything but her own cognomen.

EVEN MORE SUFFERS

Mary, the loveliest name in the world, has as many short-cuts as a corner lot. "Straw hat" is her name, was Meredith, she would be called Mary. But it wouldn't be called "Mary" by the smallest chance. Oh, no. Because what we are trying to do to-day is to avoid giving any one a real name except at the altar, on diplomas, on savings accounts or vouchers.

Why? The habit is certainly growing, although it is not new.

The loveliest names of a past generation or two were often ruined. Cornelia was Nellie, Eliza was out—Lettitia, Tibb—Maidie, Tillie—Angeline, Ina—Selina, Ina—Martha, Mattie—and Agnes just plain Ag.

THE CASE OF "FLEA"

Boys' names have never been distorted so much as those of girls, even though "Abraham" ever was "Abe." As a rule male names were abbreviated to the first syllable, or the last, and it went at that.

It is strange about nicknames, sometimes. Often they have no relation to the actual name at all, such as that of the girl called Madeline. She eventually became "Flea," as dubbed by her brothers, because she was small. She even gets mail addressed to Miss Flea Smith because half the people do not know her name.

This is the trouble with the shortened name. It is confusing when someone wants to look up the owner in the telephone book, make out a check, or give him for reference.

We are kidding pretty fast. I bet he has it just one, and not a dozen. Heve, into the habit of the non-descript makeshift. If there is not a best name, it is a bad one.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

THE RUNABOUT'S WHINES ARE

Before I had any children of my own I lived near a family with two sons, one two and a half and the other four and a half years old. The younger son had his mouth open from morning until night with loud, resentful or whining cries issuing from it. I decided then that his age had something to do with it, since obviously he had no particular grievances to cry over.

When I went into child training work I realized that this observation was correct. The boy from two to four is the cry baby age. It is the time when parents are always accusing the child of being so mean and irritable and hard to manage and nasty.

THE NEGATIVISTIC STAGE

Scientifically this period is called the negativistic one. This is just another way of saying that the child says no to everything good, bad and indifferent, in a general spirit of contrariness.

The reasons for such reactions toward adults are not hard to find. The child is no longer a baby, he can talk. He has strong desires to do what he sees others doing. He wants to act as he feels he is capable of acting and he is hampered by a thousand restrictions.

All day long he is yelled at, told he is "too young to do that," put to bed, ordered to eat, told he can't go out of the yard, until his head is a buzz with orders and suggestions.

"MUST DO—CAN'T DO"

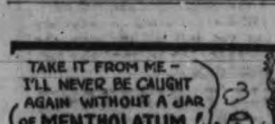

At the same time he is supposed to be old enough to keep dry, to feed himself, to mind his mother, to stay out of mischief, to play nicely, to keep from crying. He is told these things as often as he is told that he is too young to do the things he wants to do.

It is but natural that these conflicting expectations will result for the child in an attitude that no one can deny him. He can always cry and he does cry, this indicating his rage at restrictions, his resentment at interference with his desires to be more adult and his fury at punishment for his still babylike failures.

UNDERSTAND THE CHILD

Treatment for the negativistic period is suggested in our leaflet, "Wise Management of the Child" and "How to Meet the Child's Opposition."

Says Jealousy Hampers Women In Business

Emily Kneubuhl, Secretary
U.S. Federation, Business,
Professional Clubs, Discusses Ethics

While just as honorable and far more ancient organizations were going bankrupt all about her, Emily Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, firmly and efficiently guided her membership of 50,000 through the shoals of depression and emerged triumphant with neither salary cuts nor discharged employees. Mrs. Kneubuhl is well known in Victoria, having visited the local club last year.

"The credit is due, not to me, but to the way the staff and members co-operated," Miss Kneubuhl declared modestly.

"The very first thing I did was to call a meeting of our twenty staff members to discuss how we could save money. Everybody had a chance to give an opinion and every opinion was carefully considered. As a result we were able to make efficient and economical adjustments at headquarters—unconvinced ourselves somewhat by closer quarters, all shared in increased work when it was necessary and weathered the storm harmoniously."

URGES VACATIONS

Mrs. Kneubuhl has definite theories about being an executive.

"One of the rules I firmly believe in and practice is that an executive, woman or man, should get as far away from the job as often as possible and forget all about it during a period of real relaxation and playtime," she explains.

"I have no patience with the idea, seemingly held by lots of women, that you cannot make a success of your job unless you are on it every hour of the twenty-four. I know one woman executive who boasts that she slaves until 12 o'clock every night. That seems bad business. How can she get a proper perspective if she never views her work at long range?"

"Along with frequent and thorough vacations, I believe that an executive should keep physically fit, be completely honest (though I do not say she must always say everything she thinks); learn when to keep silent; get an educational background that will make it possible to meet all kinds of people and exercise ripe and seasoned judgment."

MEN ENVOIOUS, TOO

The thing that most often wrecks the usefulness of women executives, Mrs. Kneubuhl thinks, is the competitive instinct manifested in jealousy and envy. For that matter, she does not think women have a monopoly of this evil, for men often suffer from it and so do organizations.

"I believe in the co-operation of organized groups as well as individuals," she declares.

"When it becomes possible for organizations to work together toward certain ends without squabbling, then we shall accomplish miracles. A good leader should have the ability to judge by merit, not personality."

she declares. "When it becomes possible for organizations to work together toward certain ends without squabbling, then we shall accomplish miracles. A good leader should have the ability to judge by merit, not personality."

INTERESTED IN MANY CAUSES

Mrs. Kneubuhl, who is a brilliant speaker and highly trained in citizenship and international affairs, has all her life sacrificed professional and commercial preference to give her time to the great causes which have successfully engaged the foremost women of the country.

As a suffragist, she sought political emancipation for her sex. Then she became a consultant in political education and, as lecturer and organizer for the National League of Women Voters, did her best to arouse new voters to a sense of civic and political responsibilities.

Next she turned her mind to international relations and made this the subject of post graduate study at Syracuse University. The job that has interested her most, however, is her present one. She sincerely believes that business and professional women have a very special contribution to make to the feminist movement.

Nobody controls their pocketbooks and no nobody can tell them what to do," she points out. "That gives them unlimited power and I believe they will use it well."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

CATHOLIC Y.P. CLUB

The monthly dance of the Catholic Young People's Club will be held Wednesday, September 26, in the K. of C. Hall, Government Street. All arrangements have been completed by the committee in charge. Special invitations for the dance have been given to the members to be distributed among their friends. The music will be supplied by a first-class orchestra.

The weekly meeting, to be held on Thursday evening, will be devoted to the interests of the study club, when one of a series of papal encyclicals will be read and studied.

FIRST UNITED Y.P.S.

"When I told an old lady friend of mine that I was speaking on 'Humor in the Bible' to-night, she was shocked," began Dean Quainton in an address to the First United Young People's Society Monday evening.

"However, the Bible is intensely human and thus has humor in it. Some people think you cannot be humorous and reverent both, but you do not possess religion until you see the fun in it," he went on.

"If some of us could discover how enjoyable the Bible is we would read it more," declared the Dean. As examples of this he quoted the proverb "As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout" and "It is better to dwell in a corner of the housetop than with a brawling woman in a wide house."

"To say that Christ never smiled, I think, is untrue," said the Dean. "He must have smiled when He was with children. Because we reverse Him we must not dehumanize Him. Humor in highest form comes from persons at peace with God," said the Dean in his concluding remarks.

The address met with an ovation by the large audience of young people.

Another feature of great interest was a debate, "Resolved that all proposals of marriage should be made by women." The affirmative was upheld by Miss Sheila O'Connell and

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1934

Adverse planetary aspects dominate today, according to astrology. It is a time for looking after investments and safeguarding property.

In the early morning hours the mind should be keen and the vision clear; foresight is trustworthy. This is a time for careful planning and for arranging programmes and schedules.

Under this way there may be an unjust antagonism to persons in authority. Criticism and slander may be prevalent and envy and jealousy are indicated.

Labors may be affected by this configuration. Many changes in leadership are prophesied for union organizations. San Francisco, ruled by the sign of the zodiac, which often inspires turbulence, may be the scene of industrial trouble, but their will be settled wisely.

Women are under a happy rule to-day, which seems to promise success through public service and mass influence. Clubs and other organizations are well directed by the planets.

This should be a fortunate wedding day, although attainment of property will be slow. Love should last for those who are married under this configuration.

Persons whose birthdate is 11 have the augury of a year of perplexities that finally work out satisfactorily. Many will find friendship and romance.

Children born on this day may be temperamental but kindly. Many have unusual talents and the ability to achieve success. The subjects of this sign have the gift of making other persons help them.

Irving Bacheller, novelist, was born on this day, 1889. Others who have celebrated this day are: George Frederic Kunz, mineralogist, 1856; Daniel W. Voorhees, statesman, 1827.

"If it wasn't for the telephone I wouldn't have a home now," he admitted afterwards . . . and he kept his telephone.

"Why doesn't somebody do something?" Lila interrupted fretfully. "Where's Marko? Why did Marko have to run off and leave like that? Where is everybody?"

At length there were steps in the hall and the women looked gratefully, hopefully at Hunt as he came in. Gypsy felt she had never liked him better than she did at that moment. He seemed a very tower of strength.

He came toward them swiftly and said something in a low tone to Lila. She uttered a faint shriek and buried her face in her wadded handkerchief. Davies led her from the room.

Hunt faced the others. "He hit the parrot three stories below," he told them gravely. "He's alive—but they think his back is broken."

"If there is anything more irritating than a man's discovery, on avoiding the very jaws of temptation and rushing home to his wife, that the latter is nowhere to be found, cannot think of it at the moment. Tom Weaver felt decidedly silly, distinctly priggish and finally, bitterly angry. Gypsy said she would be home early, she had seemed genuinely to mean it. Here it was past midnight and she had not appeared.

Tom didn't like it. He pined himself on his modern attitude, but toward his wife. She was a free agent, wasn't she? The days of the possessive husband were gone forever—and yet—

The telephone rang and he answered it in a cold, dispassionate voice. It was Gypsy and she was excited. Her voice sounded as though she had been crying. This made Tom angrier than ever. Fine going! His wife off—heaven knew where—with another man, upset by something he couldn't hear half she said but he gathered she was on her way home. He scarcely answered her. The coldly, bitterly stubborn mood which visited him infrequently was shutting down upon him. He could do nothing to conquer it.

He stalked into the bedroom, started down at the sleeping baby. But the utter dependence and abandon of the curled small figure did not serve to dispel his gloomy temper. Although he knew it was wrong, he told himself that Gypsy was neglecting the boy. She had no business rushing around as she did these days.

Presently he heard her key but he did not move. He continued to stand there, in the half light, sulking. But his ears were alert. He heard the click of her drawers, the click of another lamp and Gypsy's half hysterical laugh which ended in a sob. She said something unintelligible to her secret.

"Lord, you'd think the fool would have sense enough to go home now," Tom thought grimly. He went out into the hall, caught at a disdistant tap after his sojourn in the dark. Blinking like an owl, he thought, Gypsy said, "Oh, darling!" in what he considered almost an indecent emotional voice, but he did not respond; he felt himself alone. He saw the fellow looking at him oddly and he nodded, feeling like a wooden man, stiff and inhuman.

"She's had a shock," he heard the other man say.

The muscles of Tom's mouth stretched themselves in what he hoped was a sarcastic smile. "Oh, has she?" he asked. "What was this all about? Why didn't she chap go off and leave them?"

The story tumbled out. Gypsy told most of it, tearing at her thin handkerchief. Tom got grimmer and grimmer as it progressed. So this was the sort of men they'd got themselves into, was it?

"It will look fine in the papers tomorrow, won't it?" he asked coldly. Gypsy's eyes flew to his face. Why was he taking it this way—he could see her asking herself the question. He lighted a cigarette with fingers that shook a little.

"You shouldn't have gone in the first place," he said ugly. "You know I've been against that connection from the start. We don't belong in that crowd. You knew it."

"Yes, but Tom..." He couldn't stop himself. He hated himself for going on like this but some inner force drove him. "That woman is rotten clear through," he stated clearly. "Of course, if you want to do yourself up with people like that it's none of my business."

Hunt interrupted. "Look here, Weaver, you mustn't talk to her that way."

"Oh, mustn't I?" He glared. "This is my fault of hers. A man comes to a party drunk. He makes a scene—he has a fall. I fall to see how Gypsy is to blame."

"Perhaps," said Tom in a tone of voice with anger, "perhaps all this is none of your affair, boy!" Gypsy cried on a note of despair. "Stop it. You're both being ridiculous. To-morrow we'll all laugh at this. We're strung up now. We're not normal." She held out her hand to Hunt. "Good night, and thanks for seeing me through it."

"I hate to..." He took her hand reluctantly, glanced at Tom with irony. "Sorry, old man."

Tom barely nodded. His attitude was that of a host unable to wait until the unwelcome guest has bowed himself out. When the door had closed after him Gypsy said, very low, "Oh, why did you behave like that? So unnecessary..."

This, he felt, was the last straw. His own wife defaming the other fellow, upbraiding him.

"So that's the way it is! You'll take his part against me. He's a fatuous ass and I can't stand him around any longer. People are talking..."

Her eyes blazed. "Who?"

"Only to-night a woman said something."

"I thought you were working to-night," she flared at him. She had hung her little velvet wrap aside and stood revealed in all her desirability. Her eyes were feverishly bright with excitement and fatigue. The spritely gown brought out every alluring curve of her charming figure. Never had Tom seen her look so utterly adorable and yet so abhorred there, defying him, he felt that it was not love he had for her in his heart—but hatred, almost.

"Was working," he said thickly, angrily. His choler almost choked him. "Who said I wasn't?"

Can this be us, quarreling so horribly, cruelly, cheaply? thought Gypsy with despair.

She made one last desperate effort at sanity.

"I'm working," she said reasonably. "We'll talk it over in the morning. Tom, if you don't mind, I can't think..."

The memory of Derek's distraught face was with her.

He reached out, his fingers gripping one small wrist with a grip of iron. "We'll talk now and you'll listen," he rasped. "Or I'll walk out of the door this instant and you'll not see me again."

Now the storm which had been threatening all the long evening began in real earnest. The lightning flashed. The heavens trembled under the onslaughts of fierce, shattering peals of thunder. Gypsy shivered, not only because of the storm but because of Tom's last words and the baleful expression he now bent upon her.

"I'm tired," she repeated. "I've had a dreadful time of it. Can't you see that? That awful scene with Derek..." She shut her eyes.

"Don't try to turn me aside," Tom said bleakly. "I want to know what there is between you and Gibson?"

She stared at him. "You know there's nothing at all..."

TO FINISH EXTENSION

Ald. John Worthington Has Motion Passed For Completion of Johnson St. Work

Completion of Johnson Street extension at a cost of $1,908 will be effected by the City Council as the result of action taken yesterday evening on a motion by Alderman John A. Worthington, who, with Alderman J. D. Hunter, has devoted a great deal of attention to that stretch of roadway.

Alderman Worthington expressed confidence the funds could be found for the work, and stated the road would be surfaced with a non-skid finish.

Alderman James Adam commended the work so far done on Johnson Street extension. It was a credit to the city, he declared.

In a more facetious vein, Alderman R. A. Dewar spoke of the wooden curbing timber used around the unfilled part of the road. It was an unusual feature, he said, that the timber used by car going to Equinault was unblemished, while that on the side leading from the municipality to the city was all cut up and bruised.

MAY TRY NEW SIGNAL PLAN

Automatic Stop-and-Go Device May Be Given Trial at Yates and Douglas

Automatic stop and go signals may be introduced to Victoria in a trial form at the intersection of Yates and Douglas Streets as the result of action taken by the City Council yesterday evening.

The council gave third reading to the new streets traffic and regulations by-law making installation of the automatic signals permissive. It also referred to the city electrician, M. Hutchinson, communications from the chief of police and the Canadian General Electric Company Limited. The former asked the installation of an automatic signal at the above-mentioned intersection at costs of installation alone. The latter gave figures on the costs of various devices.

A protest from the Ratepayers' Association regarding the stop signals was received and filed following reading.

morals and evil speaking of and abusive language towards other peoples. In addition the broadcasting of all speeches, songs, etc., which have been banned by the government are forbidden on the radio.

IRISH CAST AT DOMINION

Appear in "The Key," a Story of Sinn Fein Days; Zasu Pitts Is Also Starred

Having the Sinn Fein uprising of 1920 as its story background, Warner Bros. film, "The Key," which comes to the Dominion Theatre to-day, presents a cast which, appropriately, includes a number of actors whose names connote their Irish ancestry.

They are J. M. Kerrigan, who endeared himself to screengoers as Marion Davies's father in "Little Old New York"; Henry O'Neill, well-known New York stage actor recently placed under contract by Warner Brothers; Maxine Doyle, the former mistress of Zerk and Clarette, internationally known dancers, who have appeared in revues in London and Paris, as well as in New York and other leading cities of this continent, will appear in Victoria, with "The Masters of Rhythm," opening at the Empire Theatre Friday and showing also on Saturday and Monday with midnight matinee Sunday.

These two extremely clever dancers were recently featured in a motion picture produced by Warner Brothers. At the Empire Theatre this week-end they will perform the tantalizing Brazilian dance, "The Carioca," and a beautiful Hungarian gypsy dance, just as they did in that delightful light opera, "The Fortune Teller."

These two extremely clever dancers will be accompanied by Ralph Britt and his Victor orchestra. This orchestra has made a name for itself in New York and Chicago, at leading hotels and has also played over several of the leading radio stations in the east.

Various Investigations Differ on Effects of Smoking, Although Certain Observations Seem To Be Significant

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Regardless of the fact that many millions of people smoke tobacco regularly and that they have been doing so for many years, the scientific facts relative to the effects of tobacco on the human body are only beginning to be established.

A recent investigation made at Harvard University indicates that the most important substance in tobacco is nicotine. A cigarette contains about one gram of tobacco, and this is about 1-80th of an ounce, and 1-100th of this is nicotine.

Investigations show also that about 1-10th of the nicotine present is absorbed by the smoker into his body. Yet it has been established that this small amount of nicotine may bring about significant changes in body reactions.

Some investigators found that the blood sugar increases 30 to 40 per cent during the fifteen minutes that follow the smoking of one cigarette and returns to normal within the next thirty minutes. Another investigator found that the blood sugar rose in a fairly uniform manner for a period of two hours after smoking two cigarettes.

Unfortunately for the significance of these observations still another investigator found a decrease in blood sugar after smoking, and two others found that smoking did not have any effect on the blood sugar. For this reason the investigators in Harvard decided to check the matter.

They tried the effects of smoking of cigarettes on ten smokers, using four different types of cigarettes and taking several specimens of the blood at different intervals after smoking was completed. In nine of the ten cases the blood sugar content was not affected more than 5 per cent one way or the other.

This observation is of the greatest significance, because the establishment of a definite rise in blood sugar following smoking would seriously modify the habits of all persons with diabetes or of diabetic tendency.

In connection with these investigations it has been pointed out that the smoking of cigarettes will alleviate hunger.

One group of physiologists pointed out that this alleviation of hunger was due to the increase of the amount of sugar in the blood. Another group insisted, however, that the alleviation of hunger was associated with a lessening of the contractions of the stomach which come one when a person is hungry.

Some special studies have brought out new evidence to the support of those who insist that smoking relieves hunger because it stops the contractions of the stomach.

A final observation of considerable significance is the relationship of cigarette smoking to oxygen consumption. In some people the smoking of cigarettes is followed by an increase of oxygen consumption of from 10 to 15 per cent.

THE THREE HARMONETTES who will appear with the "High Hatters of Rhythm" coming to the Empire Theatre on Friday.

EMPIRE THEATRE
Doug Dumbrille, who plays the role of the public prosecutor in the First National production, "Journal of a Crime," which is showing at the Empire Theatre with Ruth Chatterton in the stellar role, is probably better versed in criminal court procedure than most actors on the American stage.

The criminal courts have always exerted a fascination over Dumbrille. During his years on the New York stage he attended most of the important criminal trials. When he was on tour, Doug never missed a trial that was going on in any large city where the company played for an engagement of a week or longer.

COLUMBIA THEATRE
Helen Twelvetrees, feminine star of "Panama Flo," "Millie," and "A Bedtime Story," is seen in her latest featured role in Paramount's "Disgraced."

Victoria and District League Entry List Closes With Twenty-two Clubs Entered; Keen Competition Expected in All Divisions

Victoria hoop teams will open their 1934-35 season at the Victoria High School gymnasium on Friday, October 5, with three games, as a result of a motion passed at yesterday evening's general meeting of the Victoria and District Basketball League. Twenty-two teams filed their entries with secretary Les Gordon yesterday evening and with the exception of the men's senior A division where no entries were received, all divisions will have competitive leagues.

Six new teams have registered while the balance of the entry is made up of last season's clubs.

In the men's senior B division the Colonist, Beavers, West Road, Tillamook, New Method and Lake Hill will compete for the honors now held by the Colonist squad. West Road, until last season when they advanced to the A division, have always been a threat in this class, and together with the Beavers and Colonist look like the pick of the division.

WOMEN'S DIVISION
Pantorium, Standard Laundry, Maroons and Unity will play in the women's division and plenty of competition is anticipated here. All these teams have lined up fairly strong squads and appear to be fairly equal in strength.

The intermediate A boys' division drew the entry of Deale, last year's intermediate B champions, Kingham and Gillespie, Canadian Scottish, Centennial Black Hawks, Fernwood Market and Regents. This is a strong division with plenty of strength on all teams.

Senior C men's honors will be competed for by three teams, Fountain Service, Navy and Normal School, while the intermediate A girls' league will be formed by Cardinals, Live Wires and Hudson's Bay.

Secretary Gordon will release the schedule for the season's play in the near future, and all teams will receive considerable play.

Canadian Club Noses Out Rochester 2 to 1 to Take International League Crown; Stand By to Take Part in Little World's Series

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 25.—Toronto Maple Leafs will be the International League's standard-bearer in the forthcoming little world series against the American Association champions.

The Leafs completed their sweep through the league's post-season playoffs yesterday evening, defeating Rochester Red Wings 2 to 1 in the fifth and deciding game of the final series.

Previously they had eliminated Newark league champions, four games to three. Their margin over Rochester, which finished second to Newark in the regular season, was four victories to one. Toronto finished third in the regular season.

Al Hollingsworth, young-southpaw, and Johnny Heving, veteran catcher, were the heroes of the final game. Hollingsworth had the Red Wings batters handcuffed practically all evening. He allowed only four hits, walked two and fanned twelve.

A TIMELY SINGLE

Heving waited until the ninth inning to put on his act. Rochester had tied the score at 1 to 1 in the last half of the eighth. Murray Howell opened the Toronto ninth with a grounder to Tommy Caray but the Rochester shortstop's perfect throw was dropped by Manager George Toporcer. Bill Regan pushed Howell along to second with a sacrifice and after Nolan Richardson had fanned, Heving came through with a sharp single over the second base to drive Howell home with the winning run.

The Leafs now await the outcome of the American Association playoffs between Columbus and Minneapolis. The first game of the little world series probably will be played in Toronto Thursday night.

Short Score—R. H. E.
Toronto..... 2 4 1
Rochester..... 1 4 2
